Denunciation of Khrushchev Has Started

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — The reverberations over Nikita Khrushchev's fall from power are spreading unpredictably and the sudden removal of the ebullient 70-year-old premier who for a decade captured world headlines while changing the direction of communism in the Soviet Union, could drag others under too.

A picture emerged of Khrushchev's final days as Soviet leader before Leonid I. Brezhnev, 57, became Communist party secretary and Alexei N. Kosygin, 60, Premier. It bore out the belief that Khrushchev was forced from rule at a dramatic, secret meeting of the Soviet Communist leadership.

W. Averell Harriman, former U.S. ambassador to Russia, and U.S. undersecretary of state for political affairs, said Friday night that Khrushchev told him last year he would step down after his 70th birthday and even named his successors. Harriman said in a talk at Muncie, Ind., that the only surprise in Khrushchev's demise "is the manner in which it happened."

Pravda, organ of the Communist party, shed light on the purge Friday in a bitter denunciation of the ousted chief. Without naming him, it accused Khrushchev of "hair-brained scheming, immature conclusions and hasty decisions and actions divorced from reality, bragging and phrasemongering, commandism and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience."

Though, in effect, accusing Khrushchev of dictatorship, the newspaper said the policies of peaceful coexistence of the former ruler would be carried out. It also said Khrushchev's support for the new nations of Asia and Africa and his plans for a Communist summit showdown with Red China would be continued.

A foreigner who talked with Khrushchev last month said the premier was almost obsessed with the Chinese challenge. It was his handling of Russian-Chinese relations that some non-Communist observers say swung the balance against him when the Communist leadership met Monday.

Khrushchev at the time was rejoicing at his vacation villa on the Black Sea over news that the Soviet Union had sent into orbit the first multi-passenger space ship.

IRS Plans 3 Auctions at Jonesboro

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service has scheduled three auctions to dispose of property seized from John Robert Harrell, religious cult leader arrested Sept. 19 near Strawberry.

Harrell, head of the Christian Conservative Church, was despoiled and jumping bond on his indictment. The IRS also placed a $257,429 tax lien against Harrell.

He was free on bond under the harboring charge when he disappeared almost a year and a half prior to his arrest. Harrell pleaded guilty in federal court at St. Louis Oct. 13 to the harboring and bail jumping charges — a plea that could cost him 32 years in prison and $34,000 in fines.

The first IRS sale will be held Oct. 26 at Wallin's Garage in Walnut Ridge to dispose of eight cars, a pickup truck and a jeep. Two auctions are set Oct. 27. One is at Strawberry for sale of lumber seized from Harrell, the other will be held immediately afterward to dispose of household furniture, appliances, tools, 16 refrigerators, seven washing machines and other items.

The IRS also seized a collection of $4,000 silver dollars considered to exceed their face value, and $1,000 in cash.

Weather

Clear with little change in temperature today and tomorrow.

AND THE AUTOS GO 'ROUND AND 'ROUND—Looking something like two fat, raisin-filled cookies, these proposed masses of circular concrete have been designed to meet the need for attractive, convenient, low-cost self-parking facilities. Called Spira-Park, the new proposal combines concrete spirals—one up and one down—with cross-overs at each level. With parking stalls on both sides of the one-way lanes, a three-loop Spira-Park can house 460 cars, a seven-looper will hold 1,060 cars. The system was developed by the Austin Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

No Simple Agriculture Solution

By W. B. RAGSDALE, JR.

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said today "there just are no simple solutions to the mess . . . in agriculture" and the present administration should be "honest enough to stop trying to patch it up."

The Republican presidential nominee, in a speech for the National Corn Picking Contest, added: "We must seek the best ways open to us to bridge the gap between the controlled agriculture we now have and the free agriculture we must move toward."

The speech came as Goldwater plunged back into the Midwest farm belt — where he campaigned Tuesday and swung into Texas. He stopped at Sioux City, Iowa, before coming to the corn picking contest.

The Sioux Falls speech was billed by Goldwater aides as a major farm speech. But the speech contained few specific programs and concentrated heavily on criticism of Democratic farm policies. Goldwater pledged to call on the aid of people who know agriculture.

"My secretary of agriculture will be a man with experience in farming, a man who knows what it's like to plow a furrow and to have dirt on his hands," Goldwater said. "He will not be a defunct governor, trained as a city lawyer and looking for a political handout."

As he has previously, Goldwater pledged to "seek out the advice of farmers and farm organizations across the country, to find ways to make a sound and healthy transition away from controls."

The Arizona senator, who has called for an end to farm price supports, repeatedly reassured farmers this would be done gradually, denying he favored an immediate end to them.

"I will never jerk the rug from under the American farmer," he said. "We must not scrap existing programs until we are sure we have something better to substitute for them."

Goldwater promised to work toward "a free and prosperous American agriculture."

Steel, Motors Decline on Stock Mkt.

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels and motors declined as the stock market headed lower in moderately active trading early this afternoon.

Losses of fractions to about a point among key stocks outnumbered gainers.

Wall Street was preoccupied with the British election and the possibility that if the Laborites win they might stiffen interest rates in Britain and this would lead to similar action in the United States.

At the same time, the investment community was unsettled by the scandal involving an aide to President Johnson and the possible effect of this on the presidential election.

Some fairly sharp losses occurred among coppers, rails, farm implements, chemicals and office equipments.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .9 at 327.6 with industrials off .8, rails off .8 and utilities off .8. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was down 3.13 at 872.05.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange in moderate trading.

Corporate bonds were mixed in light trading. U.S. government bonds were mostly unchanged.

Trying to Use Replacement of Nikita

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, off today on another campaign trip, has tried to use the replacement of Nikita Khrushchev as an argument for keeping a Democrat — Lyndon B. Johnson — in the White House.

Johnson broached this approach Thursday night in winding up a two-day swing through New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York.

Addressing a Johnson-backing Liberal party rally in Manhattan's Madison Square Garden, the President said: "Changes and uncertainties in this busy world where we live give great weight to our own need for a stable, sure, steady course on the basis of a steady bipartisan foreign policy."

Let anyone miss his point, Johnson added that voters could toss bipartisanship in foreign affairs "down the drain" on Nov. 3 — "but I don't think you're going to." Previously, Johnson repeatedly had expressed the view that a GOP election victory would destroy bipartisanship.

The President, who added comments about the Soviet power shift to his prepared text, said the shuffle "may or may not be a sign of deeper turmoil or may be a sign of deeper changes to come."

But he said the shakeup should be a sign to Americans that "we should keep steady on our goals — that peace is the mission of the American people and we are not to be deterred."

Today, Johnson planned to fly into Ohio for evening appearances in Cincinnati and Dayton. Then he was to fly to his Texas ranch for a weekend respite before stumping his native state next week.

Johnson got another good taste of big crowds — and it elated him — Thursday in Brooklyn. His motorcade was greeted by tens of thousands of people along the route that police refused to estimate the number.

All along the 33-mile route, Johnson was flanked by Robert F. Kennedy, his former attorney general now the Democratic Senate candidate in New York.

The President took every opportunity to praise Kennedy and call for his election, and he referred to him repeatedly as "Senator Kennedy."

The younger brother of John F. Kennedy spoke, in turn, of his "affection and admiration" for Johnson.

Former Hope Teacher Wins Valley Forge Award for An Open Letter to Youth

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Last October Miss Beryl Henry of Benton, a former Principal of Hope High School, suggested to Mrs. P. L. Perkins that she enter the contest for the Valley Forge Retired Teachers medal awarded annually in each state. Her dedication to youth and to America prompted Mrs. Perkins to accept the challenge, and last May she won the contest in the state of Arkansas.

Of her 35 years in the teaching profession, Mrs. Perkins has spent 17 in the Hope schools. She is able to reach even more pupils today through use of her series of language books in a number of states. She collaborated with Lloyd Taylor of Texas, so there is a Perkins-Taylor credit line on them.

Her prize winning letter which follows is hers alone and exemplifies the inspiration she conveys to everyone she contacts.

An Open Letter To American Youth
Dear Friends:

How great is the heritage of every American youth! You have access to the greatest libraries, the best-equipped laboratories, and the most highly skilled personnel the world has ever known. Their services are yours for the asking. The freedom to meditate, to speak, and to act becomes a challenge to every youth. YOU choose the books to be read, the experiments to be undertaken, and the teachers to be followed. Though life is a matter of your choice, one choice you could not make — the era in which you live.

Yet how you must thrill to the realization that you may be living when the year 2000 arrives! What mysteries face you! What revelations the turn of the century holds in store for you! What potentialities are yours! What are a part of scientific advances, space explorations, social readjustments, governmental changes, and religious awakenings. How much will you contribute to the forward progress?

Will you ride the crest with those who enter doors of opportunity? Or will you be caught in the undercurrent with those who fail to enter? Do you dare neglect the challenge and leave the future of America to chance?

To each of you I offer for guidance three watchwords — self - discipline, self - reliance, God - reliance.

Our Creator bestowed upon you the power to control your will. He gave to you the ability to distinguish between right and wrong. Whether you become an idler or laborer, merit scorn or praise, live a barren or fruitful existence, finish life in defeat or victory depends primarily upon how much self-discipline you exercise.

Self-reliance begets independence. What another can do for you, you can do for yourself. What another can learn, you can search out. You need not become an eccentric, a freak in appearance and actions, to prove your individuality. Diligent study, cooperative research and noble contributions as a result of your own efforts will give ample proof of your individuality. Respect others, yet have confidence in self. Live with your fellowman, but draw from within. The freedom of choice is yours.

God-reliance is both the ever-present and the culminating activity in life. Man is finite. No matter how much self-discipline you administer, no matter how much self-reliance you possess, there will be times of disillusionment, frustration, and discouragement. But the Divine Power is always near to lift you, to renew hope, and to supply your every need. It is only as you rely upon God that you can realize the full significance of your existence now and forevermore.

I challenge you, Youth of America, as I challenged my pupils through the years. With God your Co-worker use so well your time, your talents, your mind and your freedom that you can feel no regret when you have passed from the threshold of youth to the fruition of maturity.

No Fuss at Rockefeller, Faubus Meet

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus and Winthrop Rockefeller, the Republican challenger, got together before the television cameras here Wednesday night and it was almost chummy.

Neither candidate had more than passing unkind phrases for the other, and they were friendly most of the time.

The issues drew little discussion.

Faubus said Rockefeller had the qualifications to be governor.

Rockefeller left the clear impression that he thought Faubus had not done a bad job as chief executive.

They even agreed that their programs are a lot alike.

The difference, Rockefeller contended, is that the GOP program is more far-reaching than the Democrats'.

This irked Faubus some. The biggest split between the candidates was on the gambling issue.

Faubus said he let casinos operate in Hot Springs for more than nine years because he opposes state interference in local affairs.

He finally closed the gambling, he said, because the legislature passed a resolution against it.

Rockefeller said he would not have waited for a legislative resolution, but would have gone ahead on his own and closed the casinos.

Faubus invited Rockefeller to name the places in Pulaski County where gambling is. Rockefeller had charged earlier that gambling existed in Pulaski. Rockefeller replied Wednesday night that he had been speaking on the basis of hearsay.

The governor said that if Rockefeller uncovered gambling in Pulaski County that both candidates could go on the raid.

"You're a strong fellow," Faubus said. "You can have one ax and I'll take another and we'll break it up."

Rockefeller answered another charge made by Faubus previously. The governor said last week that Rockefeller's family owned a casino which operated in Puerto Rico. Rockefeller responded that it belonged to one of his brothers, and that he had nothing to do with it.

The governor said is remark that he would "jump in a truck and run over" racial demonstrators who blocked traffic of a legitimate business enterprise was made "more for emphasis because I am very determined to maintain law and order in the streets of Arkansas."

Both candidates seemed opposed at this time to any tax increase. Faubus said he would go along with a specific tax for a specific purpose if voters wanted it.

Security Risks Prove Costly to Government

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Walter W. Jenkins morals case raises this important question: How effective is the U.S. government program aimed at keeping possible security risks off the federal payroll?

The answer appears to be that an intensive effort is made, but that the machinery slips a cog now and then.

The magnitude of the effort is illustrated by a couple of statistics:

1. Last year the Civil Service Commission made 230,000 checks on applicants for non-sensitive jobs, such as mailmen. These checks cost about $5 each.

2. In the same period, the commission made 35,000 "full field investigations" of people doing special jobs, such as computer operators handling national defense data. The cost of these probes averaged about $390.

The Civil Service Commission handles most — but not all — of these investigations for the executive branch of government. The FBI handles quite a few, including White House appointees. And each of the military services has its own investigative branches.

Under an executive order issued years ago and reinforced in another order of 1948, every appointive officer in the executive branch, from cabinet officer down to waste-basket emptier, is supposed to have clearance of some kind or another.

The highest clearances are required for all members of the National Security Council except the president and vice president and all who attend cabinet sessions where sensitive matters are discussed. This includes the secretary of state, the secretary of defense and the director of the Office of Emergency Planning.

The National Security Council does not make investigations itself. It relies on the agencies who send people before it.

"For example," an official said, "when Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara attends a session, he is responsible for the guaranteed security of himself and the people he brings with him."

Jenkins, who resigned as special assistant to President Johnson this week after his arrest on morals charges in 1959 and last Oct. 7 became public knowledge, attended some National Security Council meetings and had access to any information the President had, persons familiar with his duties have said.

An Air Force Reserve officer, Jenkins was granted a top secret clearance by the Air Force in 1956 after an investigation into his background, the Defense Department said last night.

In 1958, when Johnson was majority leader of the Senate and in a position to receive much classified information, Jenkins as his aid, was investigated by the FBI at the request of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Sources have said this check disclosed no personal behavior that might reflect unfavorably on Jenkins' clearance for access to classified material.

The clearance situation on Capitol Hill is different from that of the executive branch of government and not beholden to executive orders.

So, some congressional committees, before hiring staffers, ask the FBI to look the applicants over. Others are more careless, hiring people without even a $5 checkup.

What happens when a congressman, or one of his employees, gets into a position where he needs access to top secrets like those of the Atomic Energy Commission?

The director of the AEC then has the delicate task of determining whether granting such access will be in accord with national security.

One gathers that, on the record at least, elected members of Congress are not given the full "field investigation treatment."

But one gathers, too, that the AEC, in considering such questions, tries to look at congressmen and their employees as individuals rather than officials, and tries to guide itself accordingly.

TAKES RFK POST—Under Federal law, Deputy Attorney General Nicholas D. Katzenbach becomes acting attorney general when the top job becomes vacant. Katzenbach takes over until a successor to resigned Robert F. Kennedy is appointed, probably after the November elections.

Says Election Officials Are Being Misled

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Republican Party official charged here Wednesday that many county election commissions are being misled into printing ballots which may not comply with state law.

Richard Butler, director of the Republican State Committee, said the list of candidates issued by Secretary of State Kelly Bryant was the cause of the confusion.

Bryant said the list was not a ballot, but simply the names of candidates for office. Butler said many persons are taking the list to be a ballot form and that several county election commissions "still think it is an official ballot."

He said Republicans were notifying their members of all 75 county elections commissions that the paper sent out by Bryant is not a ballot form. He said Bryant's covering letter referred to the list as a ballot.

The list is made up like this:
Johnson Pres. Dem. ()
Humphrey V. Pres. Dem. ()

Goldwater Pres. Rep. ()
Miller V. Pres. Rep. ()

Kasper Pres. S. Rights ()
Stoner V. Pres. S. Rights ()

A state source said that if county election commissions have their ballots printed this way, and if a voter tries to split his ticket in the presidential vice presidential race, his ballot might be voided. The source asked that his name not be used.

Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett, however, said he thought ticket-splitting would be permissible. He said that he didn't expect anyone to do it.

Bennett said that he did not, as reported Wednesday, express any indication as to the way he thought Arkansas would go in the presidential race.

Act 106 of 1961 says that presidential and vice presidential nominees of each party must be listed in a bracket with one box outside the bracket.

Bryant said his office tried to comply with the 1961 law of using brackets and also with Act 353 of 1949, which specifies that there be a box beside each name.

However, the 1961 law carried a clause voiding all laws that might conflict with it.

Bryant said he considered the three circles and two dots separate the candidates from each party to be the brackets required by law.

Accused Espionage Agents Deported

NEW YORK (AP) — Alex. Andre Sokolov, 41, and his wife, 34, accused of espionage until their trial was abruptly ended by the Justice Department, have been deported to Czechoslovakia.

Five federal agents put the couple aboard a jet airliner bound for Prague Thursday night. "I'm very happy about it, not to be sitting behind bars," said Mrs. Sokolov.

The couple had spent more than a year in jail after arrest in Washington, D.C. On the fifth day of the trial here, the prosecution dropped the charges for "national security" reasons.

U.S. Now Has to Protect Against China

By BEM PRICE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A world coexisting uneasily between two nuclear power blocs is now confronted with three. The division came Friday with Red China's announcement that a nuclear device had been exploded in her western reaches.

And Red China did it, beginning almost from scratch, in six years of incredibly intensive work.

According to intelligence sources here, Red China did not embark formally on a nuclear program until the summer of 1958 with the construction of a nuclear reactor near Peking with Soviet assistance.

This plant was capable of producing 2.5 kilograms of plutonium a year — enough for one bomb at the end of two years.

Since then intelligence sources have figured there are 15 atomic research laboratories in Peking alone and 21 elsewhere in Red China.

The explosion was no surprise to U.S. officials. On Sept. 29, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said the Chinese Communists were approaching a point where they might be able to detonate a nuclear device and that it might occur in the near future.

There are now five nations in the atomic "club" — the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union, France and Red China.

The United States Britain and France belong to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Soviet Union has stood supreme in the Communist world.

But no more. The Soviet domination of the Communist world by holding up the only atomic deterrent available is broken.

In terms of raw destructive power the Red Chinese explosion was insignificant compared with the megatonnage available to the United States and the Soviet Union.

But the explosion probably means that any hope of a deep cut in the U.S. defense budget over the next 10 years is gone.

The area over which the U.S. missiles must be targeted to destroy the war-making facilities of potential enemies over the next 10 years has been increased abruptly from 8.6 million square miles — Russia and Siberia — to embrace China's 2,279,134 square miles.

The advent of Red China as a nuclear power and the probability that she will, in time, develop her own missile delivery system, means that more pathways through space to the United States must be protected.

But there are other angles chiefly the probability that military adventurism by nations associated with Red China will increase.

If Red China rattles its atomic power toward the United States — and maybe even toward the Soviet Union — small, anti-western nations may feel free to undertake nonnuclear attacks on their neighbors: Indonesia against Malaysia or Indonesia against the Philippines, for example.

And it may make the local Communist guerrillas in Southeast Asia bolder.

Certainly the entry of Red China into the nuclear field is not going to make either India or Pakistan feel safer.

Recommends One Box for All

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett has recommended that county election commissions print only one box on the Arkansas ballot beside each set of presidential and vice presidential party candidates.

The secretary of state's office sent county commissions a list of candidates with boxes by the names of each presidential and vice presidential candidate.

If the election commissions follow this form, voters might split their votes and, Bennett said, this could cause the ballot to be nullified.

But Bennett said both methods are legal and counties which have already printed their ballots with a box after each name need not re-print them.

"There won't be enough splitting of votes to make any difference," Bennett said. He said his staff was researching the matter to make sure there could be no complications from either ballot.

Cole Porter, Composer, Dies at 71

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Cole Porter, one of the 20th century's great composers of lyrics, writer, died Thursday night at a Santa Monica hospital where he underwent kidney surgery Oct. 13. He was 71.

Doctors said Porter "simply stopped breathing." They did not give an official cause of death but said Porter's general physical condition even before he was admitted to the hospital Sept. 22 for a routine checkup was poor.

An infection from a kidney stone flared up after he was admitted, necessitating the surgery.

Only his special nurse was at his bedside when he stopped breathing. Outside the door were his chauffeur and valet.

Porter was the author of song hits such as "Night and Day," stage musicals including "Kiss Me Kate," and did the music and lyrics for such films as "High Society."

His was a familiar face in the cafe society circles of Europe and the United States. He was born a millionaire, made another fortune from a fabulously successful musical career, and was the close friend of scores of the world's celebrities.

Porter's life was so uniformly successful that when Hollywood made a film of his life — "Night and Day," starring Cary Grant as Porter, in 1946 — script writers had a hard time finding crises in his life to sustain the story line.

His hits were almost countless.

Among his better known songs: "Begin The Beguine," "What Is This Thing Called Love," "In The Still Of The Night," "I've Got You Under My Skin," "My Heart Belongs To Daddy," "You Do Something To Me," "You'd Be So Nice To Come Home To," "I Love Par- is," "Silk Stockings," "True Love," "So In Love," "Wonderbar," and "Don't Fence Me In."

Porter was born in Peru, Ind., June 9, 1893 — but soon left for the opportunities to study at Yale and Harvard.

During World War I — before the U.S. entry — he joined the French Foreign Legion in Paris, later won a commission in the French artillery, and served at the front as an officer.

In 1919 he and Linda Lee Thomas were married in Paris. She was the daughter of a Louisville, Ky., banker, William P. Lee. Porter's grandfather, J.O. Cole, who found coal on his Virginia timberlands, left him $1 million.

Porter's legs were crushed in a 1937 riding accident when a

Craig parked the car beside the Estrella Hotel — white frame, old barroom chairs inviting relaxation on a broad, shady porch facing the water. Lew strolled away and Craig unloaded the car. The attendant at the pier, a bony man of 60-odd, awakened at Craig's approach and became affably obliging. Craig selected a rowboat and bought live shrimp for bait. During the unhurried procedure he asked seemingly casual questions and learned that customers at this off-season of the year were few. No others had turned up so far today. The bill was paid and their boat ready to go when Lew walked onto the pier carrying a battered galvanized containing cracked ice and canned beer.

"Better get yourselves back horse fell and rolled on him. Dozens of operations followed and finally, in 1958, Porter's right leg was amputated. His wife died in 1954. They had no children.

"Sitting ducks," Lew said sourly. "And all we can do is go on sitting."

"Sitting without even drifting," Craig thought; there seemed to be no need to anchor, the water was so still. He looked at all they had brought along in order to act out this precarious charade: his two spinner poles, his tackle box; the bait and the beer; a vacuum bottle of coffee and a bagful of sandwiches made by Gail; mosquito repellent; their hats and jackets. But, as specifically instructed, no weapon, no flashlight, no protection of any kind. And far worse, no ransom.

"They might believe us about what happened, but even so, that doesn't mean they'll believe we can get that money back somehow, or raise more," Lew said.

"The best we can do is try." "That's not the point I'm getting at. Assuming they meant what they said in that last note, they've let Sandor go on breathing and they're ready to sell him back. I get the feeling they did mean it, and if we had the money, we'd be taking him home tonight."

"I think we would, Lew" — although Craig was still apprehensive of a second, hidden purpose of the kidnapping.

"But now, the way this thing has broken, it's no sale, no money. For them that'll be a bad jolt. We ask for more time, but for more time means more risk. They're flirting with federal rap and the hot seat. They may decide it's too dangerous to keep on holding Sandor and then go through this sticky business all over again. So then they decide to write the whole thing off and get rid of him, even though they never intended to kill him in the first place."

The same thought had been haunting Craig ever since the moment of discovery.

"Whoever stole that money must have realized that when he did it. But he did it deliberately, regardless. Which raises the big question—"

"Somebody wanted that money more than he wanted Hugo to go on living."

Lew was frowning at Craig. "Either the thief didn't care whether Sandor lived or died, or else he wanted both—the money and Sandor dead."

"That's the same as saying the thief is also a murderer by here while it's still daylight," the old man said as they pushed off. "Just in case you're a little late, keep your eye on that blinker buoy down there in the channel, or that light on the top of the flagpole in front of the hotel. If I'm not here when you pull in, just tie 'er up and I'll tend to 'er in the mornin'."

Craig assured him they would be back by sunset, knowing they wouldn't. He rowed out while Lew sat scanning the widening view of the shoreline of Estrella Island.

In describing these islands as "all jungle," Allen Landall had not exaggerated. The trees and shrubs, each sending down multiple trunks and roots, grew in an unbelievable thick tangle. When they reached the first narrow gap in the rough wall, Craig rested on the oars and Lew said disgustedly, "If it's this hard getting in, it'll be harder getting out."

The second inlet was wider. Turning into it, Craig saw that the flashing channel marker was almost opposite. The inlet curved, and when they were halfway through it, the mouth seemed to close behind them.

Looking all around they could find no other way out; they could not find the way they had come in.

"Sitting ducks," Lew said sourly. "And all we can do is go on sitting."

Faubus Uses Same Theme at Conway

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus returned to the stump Thursday for the first time in his campaign against Winthrop Rockefeller and he showed he has not lost his flair for appealing directly to voters.

His speeches to crowds on courthouse squares at Mountain View, Heber Springs, Clinton and Conway were well-stirred mixtures of review of past accomplishments, promises for the future and attacks on Rockefeller.

His theme was clear. He told each audience: "You have nothing in common with the multi-millionaire candidate."

Few of his charges against Rockefeller were new. He told his largest and most enthusiastic audience at Conway that Rockefeller had blocked appointment of a "fine Republican lawyer to a federal judgeship" for personal reasons.

He did not identify the lawyer, except to say he was from Little Rock, but he said the Rockefeller family threatened to withhold a $200,000 contribution from the Republican national campaign fund if President Eisenhower made the appointment. Other sources said the man was Osro Cobb, U.S. attorney in Arkansas during the Eisenhower administration.

Faubus also said at Conway that Rockefeller advised Eisenhower to send federal troops to Little Rock in the 1957 desegregation crisis, but he has said this before.

The governor made big issue in the dry counties of Rockefeller's statement on television Wednesday night that he was a collector of "ancient spirits."

"He spent more on a truckload of whiskey that he brought to Arkansas when he moved here than most of you people spend for a home," Faubus declared. "He has more whiskey in the front room of his home than there is in any whiskey store in Arkansas."

He said it was legal for Rockefeller to have the whiskey and he wasn't criticizing him for it. "I only bring it up to show that he has little grounds for raising moral issues (about gambling) in his campaign," he said.

The governor shook off his shirt and spoke in shirtsleeves everywhere but at Conway where the evening turned chilly.

Faubus plans to spend most of the next two weeks on the stump. Until now he has campaigned most through meetings with county political organizations. He has speeches scheduled today in Booneville, Danville and Russellville after a groundbreaking at Ozark.

Thursday was a 12-hour day. He started at 9 a.m. with taping of a 30-minute television and radio talk which was broadcast at 8:30 p.m., a few minutes after he finished his speech at Conway.

"I'll be on television in a few minutes with a different talk from the work you heard," he said. "Go home and listen to it."

But he forgot to remind his audiences at Mountain View and Heber Springs about the television talk. He remembered at Clinton only because a campaign aide reminded him.

Faubus made basically the same speech at each stop, but he tailored sections to the audiences. He used more colloquial speech in the mountain towns and he talked more about welfare benefits because his listeners were mostly elderly persons.

But at each place he said he felt he was better qualified to serve as governor than "a New York Yankee who is a former playboy."

He told about 250 persons at Heber Springs that keeping the state moving economically was like driving a wagon through a mudhole.

"You can get through all right if you don't stop in the middle," he said. "We can't afford to stop now and teach Rockefeller how to run the state government."

He ended each speech with a story about how his father used to refer to any wealthy man as being "as rich as Rockefeller or Jay Gould."

"I never expected to see a Rockefeller, much less be running against one for governor," he said.

And he told his listeners that the Rockefeller family fortune was accumulated through the "sweat of working men."

"It's good money," he said. "It spends real well. So if he offers you any of it to work for him or to vote for him, take it. But on Nov. 3 vote for you own best interest by voting for me."

Faubus spoke from the bed of intent—a murderer once removed.

"It is. I'm no lawyer, but the person who stole that money probably made himself an accessory to the crime of kidnapping, and also to the crime of murder if it comes to that. Who will profit from Sandor's death?"

a pickup truck at Clinton and he said the only way he could catch the Rockefeller campaign organization was for "people like you to go out and work for me voluntarily, because you believe in me."

Several persons in the crowd at Mountain View wore Rockefeller hats. Spotting them, Faubus said, his voice rising, "The worst fooled man you'll ever see is a poor mountaineer with a Rockefeller sticker on his car."

He got a good reaction to this remark and he used it at each stop, changing "poor mountaineer" to "poor man" in flatland Conway.

Time and again he talked about "the common people." He said he understood the problems of the common people because he was one of them. He said Rockefeller, being born rich, could never understand these problems.

And he said at Clinton that so far in the campaign Rockefeller has offered "nothing for the people of Arkansas, no change for the better."

"Rockefeller says it's time for a change," he said. "A change to what. You can change two ways — for better or worse."

He said the only answer Rockefeller was offering to various problems was a promise to study them. "I don't have to study them. I don't have to study welfare because I remember when the welfare system was created."

In the television talk, he said that Rockefeller, being accustomed to having plenty of money to spend, might seek a tax increase to be sure that he had plenty of money for state services.

"There's no record of any rich man who ever used his own wealth to solve the financial problems of government," Faubus said.

He also charged that the Rockefeller forces are saying that he (Faubus) has an incurable illness and won't live to finish his term.

"If I have such a malady, I don't know about it," he said. "And if I do die, Lt. Gov. Nathan Gordon would take over and he would be a better governor than Rockefeller."

The governor started the television talk by saying, "The progress of the past is not sufficient. We must look to the future. He painted a rosy future for the state under a sixth Faubus administration, promising improved rural road, more money for education and welfare, increases in turnback funds for cities and counties and more state parks.

He rebuked the Rockefeller forces for criticizing election officials and alleging that there are widespread election irregularities. He said there hadn't been any wide-scale election fraud since Reconstruction when Republicans were running the elections.

Dear Abby: My husband is a college instructor. He's wonderful in almost every respect, but he's a nut on sports. He's 27, and I'm 26. He was raised on a farm and his dad never let him go out for sports in school because farm chores came first. He's on two softball teams, and when he isn't playing, he's practicing. When softball season is over, it's football. After football, it's basketball. (He plays golf in between, and he's good at everything.) He likes hockey, too. Don't tell me to find myself something to do. We have two boys. One is two years old and the other is three months old. I try to be a good kid and go to watch my husband whenever he plays. I sat in the bleachers at a hockey game when I was a week overdue with my second, and chased my 18-month-old son all over the gym.

Someone called my husband to be on a bowling team and I overheard him say, "My wife is unreasonable when it comes to sports!" I ask you... WHO is unreasonable?

SPORTS WIDOW
Dear Sports: Your husband! Be patient. Time will sideline him soon enough, and then he'll learn you're the best sport he has.

Dear Abby: I was glad to see your apology for lambasting the clergyman for asking the bride if she were pregnant when she and her fiance came to him to discuss their marriage plans. This is a standard question now, and I am sure the clergyman meant no personal offense. If a priest learns that the only reason a couple is getting married is to give a child a name, he'll recommend a civil ceremony rather than a religious one.

INFORMED
Dear Abby: You disappointed me when you "begged forgiveness" for asking the bride if she were pregnant.

If a clergyman had asked ME such a question in the presence of my fiancée, my fiancée would have asked him to take his collar off and step outside. When an innocent person is accused of shoplifting, and is subjected to the humiliation of a search, he has a case against the store, you know. I am not a thief, and no one has the right to ask me to prove that I didn't steal something. The principle is the same.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN
Dear Abby: I am 16 and have been kissed quite a lot. My problem is when a fellow kisses me for the first time, should I pretend I don't know how to kiss very well, or should I let him know that I do?

I don't want him to think I have had too much experience along this line, and then again, I don't want him to think I haven't had any. Can you help me?

SIXTEEN
Dear Sixteen: Just do what comes naturally. But don't overwhelm him in the first act or you'll have nothing to do for an encore.

Dear Abby: A psychiatrist once told me that a man who beats his wife was probably beaten by his mother (or a female figure of authority) when he was a child. If more mothers knew this they wouldn't be so quick to hit their sons.

Spa Chamber in Gambling Plea

LITTLE ROCK (AP) —Legal gambling would help Arkansas industrially, the president of the Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce said here Thursday.
R.F. Wooten told a civic club meeting that passage of proposed Amendment '65, which would legalize casino gambling in Garland County, would add $20 million to state tax coffers.

Bobcats Rally to Turn Back Tough Fairview

By Carter Hardage
Hope Star Sportswriter

Hope came roaring back in the final period last night to rip the fired-up Fairview Cardinals 13-0 before a Homecoming crowd in Hammons Stadium and take over sole possession of first place in Region 4AA.

The Warren Lumberjacks, who previously shared the top spot with Hope, were upset by a rough Malvern crowd 14-6 at Warren. This leaves Hope with the only unblemished conference record.

The Bobcats again relied on their stifling defense to a great extent, holding the Fairview ground attack to only fifty-six yards, actually coming out with fifteen less at the end of the game than they had at halftime.

Pulling a few tricks out of their bag, the Cards threatened inside the 10 on three different occasions. One was stopped by an interception, and two by fumbles.

On defense, the Birdies used a wide-tackle six. They had been using a monster. Coach Alen Howard admitted that "we were a little surprised by their new defense. We were confused for a while, but the kids did a terrific job of coming back in the final quarter."

Fairview got the opening kickoff and they didn't wait long to start things popping. Gary Bostic took the kick on his own 10-yard line and raced through the defenders to the Hope 13, where he was finally brought down from behind by fleet Jerry Burnett.

Two plays later, Ronnie Ingram nabbed a quickie pass intended for end Roger Wright when it bounced off.

On third down Hope shifted into and I formation and Burnett quick-kicked out to the 46.

The Bobcats next gained possession of the pigskin on their own 15. From there they mounted an offensive that carried them inside the Fairview 20 behind the running of Burnett and the Bobcat aerial attack with both Massanelli and Jordan at the helm.

From the 18, Buddy Jordan lofted a long pass to Burnett, waiting in the end zone. The only problem was that Carl Hern was also waiting. The pass was complete to both of them. Quite a controversy then arose.

In such a situation, it is customary for the officials to award the ball to the offense. However, they ruled that Hern had gotten a hold on the ball before Burnett. The ball was brought out to the 20 and given to Fairview.

After the game, Burnett stated that he thought that he was the one who caught the pass.

The quarter changed in a scoreless deadlock.

The second period was spent in a defensive match between the twenty yard markers.

When they received possession again in the third period, the Cards were unable to move. They tried a quick kick on third down, but the boot bounced off a lineman and they merely lost two yards on the attempt. On fourth down they went into punt formation.

Massanelli made a vain attempt to block the kick, and got a clodhopper right in the middle of the chest for his trouble. Although Massanelli undoubtedly got the raw end of the deal the officials called a penalty for roughing the kicker.

Thus inspired, Bush let fly with a forty yard bomb to half-back Richard Jones, who made a beautiful catch on the Hope 5, but then chose to lie down on the job.

In a tight situation, the Cardinals again faltered against the stone wall of the Hope defense. Guard Tommy Still recovered a fumble on the 7.

The third quarter passed, and still it was 0-0.

Early in the fourth quarter, Hope capitalized on another mistake by the Cardinals. Bobby Samuels fell on a Hern fumble on the Fairview 13.

Two plays later, Jordan let fly a pass to Stan Parris who waited all by himself in the end zone. Jordan added the point, and Hope went ahead 7-0 with two minutes of the period gone.

Bostic again got the kick and looked as if he had ideas of going all the way, but this time he was stopped at the 42, again by Burnett.

The Cardinals were thrown for repeated losses, and on third down Bush was racked up for an eleven yard loss by Harry Ray McMahon. He promptly dropped the ball, and McMahon fell on it at the Fairview 26.

Hope was unable to move, however, and Burnett punted out of bounds at the 2.

Fairview also faltered, and Bush was forced to go deep into his own end zone to punt. He then bobbled a bad pass from center and McMahon came storming in to fall on the ball for a TD. PAT attempt failed, and Hope led 13-0 with a little better than five minutes remaining to be played.

In the closing seconds, Hope penetrated inside the Cardinal 10, but an illegal motion infraction prevented any chance of a tally.

Jerry Burnett led in the individual statistics with 11-51. Massanelli was 10-25, Waller 6-24, Jordan 12-18, and Samuels 5-10.

Questioned About Slaying at Hamburg

HAMBURG, Ark. (AP) — Sheriff Guy Mormon of Ashley County said today a Negro man was arrested Thursday and held in an undisclosed jail for questioning in the slaying of a Hamburg woman Sept. 24.

The body of Mrs. Thomas Degges, 24, was found in woods near her home. Her 4-year-old son said a Negro man forced her into the trunk of his car and drove away.

Officers said Mrs. Degges had been raped and beaten.

Mormon would not release the name of the man he was holding. "He had been questioned before," Mormon said. "We were going over some old leads and we found some new evidence."

The man was not charged. Mormon said the man was arrested in woods near Crossett where he was working on a lumber operation.

Mormon refused to say where he was holding the man. He said he moved him to another jail "for security purposes."

After the slaying, a large number of firearms and a quantity of ammunition was purchased from dealers in Ashley County.

"People were kind of shook up," Mormon said. "They were buying them for their own protection, so they'd have a weapon in case a prowler came around."

Hurricane Deflated as Football

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C. (AP) — Tropical Storm Isbell, downgraded from hurricane status, moved over the North Carolina coast early today like a deflated football.

Early today the storm was centered 20 miles northeast of Morehead City where observers said everything was relatively quiet.

It became obvious that the storm had all but blown itself out.

But there still was danger of flooding to eastern North Carolina. Many counties in the area already have been declared disaster areas because of record flood waters within the past two weeks.

The Weather Bureau warned that Isbell might drop four to eight inches of rain over the Carolinas and Virginia.

At Morehead City, on the Atlantic, there was some rain, but little or no wind.

The Weather Bureau said winds of the storm should die no more than 55 miles per hour, but there were no reports of any wind much over 40 m.p.h., and that in gusts.

Isbell was moving on northerly course at 20 to 25 mph and was expected to lose her identity completely later in the day when she merged with a developing winter-type storm located near the upper South Carolina coast, according to the Weather Bureau.

Isbell, born in the Caribbean, marched slowly through Cuba's Pinar del Rio Province Tuesday night and Wednesday, leaving four dead and immense damage.

She picked up speed when she reached Florida, where the main body of

SOURCE of POWER

It looks easy!

In no time at all this solid log is cut clean through. There's a reason. Because back of the saw is sufficient power to do the job...penetrating power. Oh, the power that could be loosed from your life and mine if we were but willing...inexhaustible power...mountains of power that could penetrate a wicked world and turn it Godward. Jesus said, "All power is given unto me." Then why not make contact with God this very day—the source of real power. He said, "Lo, I am with you alway." Attend church and give Him a chance to help rewind the mainspring of your life. Link it up with the billion-volt-dynamo in the Power Room of The Most High.
